Woman's Rights.

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.]

RALEIGH, N. C., May 26.—Advices from Cabarrus county give accounts of a terrific thunder- and hall-storm in that section yesterday. It is described by an eye-witness as "awful." Several farmers who estimated their combined crops of wheat at 1.100 bushels will not now thresh five bushels, all told. Entire fields of cotton are ruined, or nearly so; not a leaf is left on the cotton-stalks. Hall fell to the depth of eight inches. The stones were a large as gumea-eggs. A saw-mill house was [Special telegram to the Dispatch.] as gumea-eggs. A saw-mill house was completely blown away. Trees were entirely stripped of leaves. Hall fell forty-

In Fayetteville this morning occurred a strike of hod-carriers, which proved at once unsuccessful. They were sent off and their places were supplied by other men. WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

Bishop Duncan's address at the close of the Greenstoro' Female College was a masterpiece of eloquence and logic. He said, among other good things, that he laid down the proposition that in those spheres in which woman is capable of performing the work of man she is entitled to the claim of recognition as his equal. If she can perform gertain labors as well as a man she recognition as his equal. If she can perform certain labors as well as a man she is entitled to man's remuneration. It is an injustice and a fallacy to pay a woman $800
a year for work which she knows how to do, and pay a man $1,200 a year to see that she does it right. The old tradition of ignering the right of competition of woman was attacked with withering sureasm by the Bishop.

SHE WANTED ROSS AT ONCE. Mrs. Harper's Theatrical Effort to Recall Her Truant Love.

[New York Sun.] [New York Sun.]
Dwellers in the neighborhood of Lexington avenue and Forty-third street were startled yesterday by the arrival of a Bellevue-Hospital ambulance in front of the boarding-house at 414 Lexington avenue, followed by two physicians. In five minutes a crowd gathered. The excitement increased when it was rumored in the crowd that a jealous woman had commit-ted suicide. Meanwhile a serio-comic play was going on behind the doors. Several months ago Ross Harper, of 18 rooms at 414 Lexington avenue. Mrs. Harper was ten years his elder, and they were said by the other boarders to be mismated. She is a rather good-looking, vivacious brunette.

A month ago Harper ceased to live with the woman, but paid her bills at the bourding-bouse and lived at his mother's home, near by. Mrs. Harper told the landlady that she did not live at home because she did not like her mother-in-law, but the landlady said last evening that Mrs. Harder has another husband living, and that no marriage ceremony has been performed in uniting Mr. and Mrs. Ross Harper. Mr. Harper had told the landlady that he first

After Mr. Harper had ceased to live with Mrs. Harper, the landlady said last evening, Mrs. Harper was found one night lying on the kitchen floor apparently in stuper. A physician, suspecting trickery, applied the poles of a galvanic battery to Mrs. Harper with prompt and satisfactory works. results. On another occasion Mrs. Harper was found groaning in bed, and the land-lady told her to go into the annexed disriet and take rat poison if she wanted to commit suicide. Mrs. Harper was so angry that she got well immediately.

Yesterday Mrs. Harper visited Mr. Harper's store. After some angry words she went to the boarding-house where her insulficient Anna a parallel lay sleeping.

valid sister Anna, a paralytic, lay sleeping.
Mrs. Harper arrayed herself in fine clotning,
not omitting to put on a blue satin corset,
and, so that it would be observed, punned
to it a note on which was written the words:

"Send for Ross at once."

Then she placed a bottle half filled with chloroform at the bedside, and laid down to wait with her mouth open. Her sister awoke, believed her to be dead, and alarmed the boarders. A sympathetic boarder refused to listen to the landlady's explanation that this was one of Mrs. Harper's tricks, but summoned a policeman, who called an ambulance. Dr. Smail, of 130 east Thirty-ninth street, was brought in by another boarder. When the landlady, two physicians, and an ambulance surgeon went to the room of the sufferer they saw her through the crack of the door as she reached for the chloroform bottle. Then they marched in in single file, Mrs. Harper immediately became unconscious. Dr. Small prescribed an emetic, and the landimmediately became unconscious. Dr. Small prescribed an emetic, and the landlady mounted on the bed, forced the emetic into the woman's mouth, and held her nos-

When Mrs. Harper felt better, as she had to do pretty soon, she discovered that the physicians and: he ambulance surgeon had zone away. Throwing a shawl about her shoulders she declared that no one in that house would ever see her again, and she passed majestically out into the street with a suicidal expression in her eye. A boarder ran down the avenue bareheaded to tell a policeman that Mrs. Harper was going to kill herself. The policeman arrested her and took her to the station under the Grand Central depôt, where she was charged with Central depot, where she was charged with attempting suicide. The landlady of 414 Lexington azenue was summoned, but she would not prosecute the charge and Mrs. Harper was discharged. Yesterday afternoon she called at the boarding-house and demanded her purse. The landlady told her that she bad taken all the money there was in Mrs. Harper's purse ($4) to pay the physicians who had been summoned to attend her.

The Ice-Cream Championship—A Pint in 13 1-2 Seconds.
(Cincinnati Enquirer.)
The West-End was all agog last evening over one of the most stirring sporting events that has taken place in that section in many, many moons. It was an icecream eating match. The contestants were the two far-femed leather-weight ice-cream eaters, Ed. Speer, of Mount Auburn, and Harry A. Logan, of the West End. The contest was for $5 a side. The competitors are each about eighteen years old.
The event called out many of the bestknown young sporting men of the city.

shoriest space of time should take the stakes, the championship, and everytoing in sight. Frank Kelly was chosen referee. Al. Sellers was selected as time-keeper. E. Frankin was master of ceremonies. Each contestant was allowed his choice of flavors. contestant was allowed his enoise of flavors. Speer took vanila, while Logan took chacolate. This turned the odds in favor of Speer, and the Logan men were striving trantically to hedge. The old sporting nen all agreed that vanilia was the more easily disposed of. The contestants took their places. As they took off their cirrette bats and sat down at the table it was noticed that Speer was the cooler and more collected of the two, and also that he was in better frame—his collar was higher and his shoes bad a better shine. "Go," said the referee, and the two spoons were thrust into two pints of ice-cream.

Speer took the lead at the outset and held it to the finish. Logan stood no show at any stage. Logan is the better-scienced man of the two, and if it had been a match for points would no doubt have won it. His science, however, was overmatched by the superior swallowing powers and the superior swallowing powers and greater capacity of Speer. Logan made a great spurt on the homestretch, reviving for a moment the drooping spirits of his friends and backers; but the momentary burst of speed was unavailing. Speer was an easy winner in thirteen and a half seconds. It was reported in the pool-rooms last night that $120 had changed hands on the match.

ARRAIGNING BISHOP BUDLEY. Br. Betts Defends His High-Church Views Against Prelate and

Council. A Louisville special to the World says:
Literest in the trouble between Bishop Dudiey, of this Episcopal diocese, and the Rev. Dr. George C. Betts, formerly of Missouri, but now rector of Grace church, the "highest" of the "high" churches in the diocese, over the disinclination of the pusdiocese, over the disjudination of the pas tor and his vestry to obey the demands the Bishop for the removal of the tabernac from the altar, particulars of which and the action of the council sustaining the Bishop have already been told in the World. has been much intensified by a recent sermon of Rector Betts condemning Bishop Dudley's action and defending the position of himself and his parishioners. The objectionable adjunct to the altar was introduced shortly after Dr. Beits took charge of the church, over a year ago. When the changes were finished the Bishop and clergy were invited to the rectory to meet the new pastor and inspect the church.
The Bishop awended, but did not enter the church. In speaking of this circum-tance
Dr. Betts intimated that Bishop Dudley bad purposely refrained from entering because he knew of the existence of the tabernacle. If he then intended at some future time to cause the removal of the tabernacle, Dr. Betts declared that he had subjected him "to needless cruelty."

of the visit of the wardens to the Bishop the preacher said: "He tore from them the bope of conciliation with which they had gone to him, and left them nothing to fall back upon but the reply which they sent or unconditional surrender, which they believed be had no right to demand." Dr. Betts excuses his disregard of the Bishop's mandate in these word's: "It certainly could not have been contemplated that absolute, unquestioning obe-dience to every opinion, view, or caprice of a bishop was demanded or expected by a priest." The action of the council was a priest." In eaction of the council was characterized as "trickery," and the withdrawal of the Bishop of his apostolic sanction was pronounced unduly severe.

"The tabernacle," said Dr. Betts, in conclusion, "innocent of all wrong, will be removed as soon as may be, but, as I believe, only for the present. On some other day, I only for the present. On some other day will address myself to the discussion of the doctrinal questions supposed to be involved in its appearance above the altar."

You Hold Them But by a Hair.' [Leeds Mercury.]

It is related of General Manteuffel, the late German military governor of Alsace, who hated all that was French, that he who hated all that was French, that he once, at a public dinner, engaged in a dispute with a French diplomat, who maintained the superiority of the French workmen over the artisans of all other nations, "A thing so ugly does not exist that the skill and genius of a Frenchman cannot make of it a thing of beauty," he said. Angered by the contradiction, the old solder nulled a hair from his bristly dier pulled a hair from his bristly gray moustache, and, handing it sto the Frenchman, said curtly: Let him make a thing of beauty out of that, then, and prove your claim.'
The Frenchman took the bar and sent it in a letter to a well-known Parisian jeweler with a statement of the case and an appeal patriotic pride, giving him no limit of expense in executing the order. A week later the mail from Paris brought a neat lit the box for the General. In it was a hand-some scarf-pin made like a Prussian eagle, that held in its taloons a stiff gray bristle, from either end of which dangled a tiny golden ball. One was inscribed Alsace, the other Lorraine, and on the engle's complexity by the control of the control perch were the words: "You hold them but by a hair."

Albert Palmer, a well-known Bostonian, lately deceased, was president of an ice company. During an exceedingly mild winter the ice company people, whose stock was very short, were in serious doubt whether they would have any opportunity to full their ice-houses. Palmer, in particular, watched the thermometer with a feverish interest. One evening the indications had promised "colder weather," and his auxiety led him to get up in the night and put his hand out of the window. As he did so he uttered a loud exclamation. "What is it doing, Albert?" his wife in-"What is it dong, Albert?" his wife in-quired. "Freezing?" "Freezing? Great Scott, no!" exclaimed Palmer; "it's rain-at 4:30 o'clock P. M., commencing on Seventh street near the Free bridge, the ABOVE PROPERTY.

The late improvements, such as street-car lines and new buildings all around this property, render this an attractive sale for investment. Sure and speedy profits will result from the purchase of any of the above property, a large quantity of which fronts on the proposed new line of street-railway.

Manchester is thought at present to be the best place to invest in vacant property, owing to its present low price and the certainty of an advance, and Richmond investors are availing themselves of the opportunity.

Either of the auctioneers will be pleased to show the property to any one before the sale.
